

Concealed Wallets

What are the dimensions of the wallet?

Folded, the length is 5" from the fold to the tip and just over 3" wide. Opened, it is 10" long and dollar bills do not peek above the wallet.

Why is it curved?

The curve is designed to securely fit into the front pants pocket.

Is it better for your back?

Yes. This design was created because a chiropractor told the inventor to stop sitting on his rear pocket wallet.

How many cards can fit in the wallet?

There is a slot for a license on one side; and 3 slots on the left for cards. There is also a pocket behind the slots to fit up to 5 more cards. Some people have even told us that they have fit up to 12 cards, but remember--the whole idea is to keep it slim.

How is the wallet supposed to be worn?

It can be worn in either the right or left hand front pocket with the curved edge facing outward. Refer to the illustration on this page.

What is a thumb hole slide in the ID section?

It allows the ID to be easily and quickly slid out of the wallet.

Is the wallet safer for traveling?

Yes. A front pocket wallet is almost impossible to be pick-pocketed. And this design is even that much more difficult to steal because it fits so securely in the front pocket. In fact, of the thousands of wallets sold by us, not one has reportedly ever been stolen.

Does the wallet have a space for holding bills and will this design hold both US and international currency?

The wallet has an opening at the top to fit dollar bills in lengthwise like a regular wallet. The bills do not peek over the curved edge. The wallet has also been tested with most international currencies and is deep enough to safely store them as well.
